HOW AND WHERE TO USE IT

Satin Finish provides a soft eggshell lustre. It is suitable for use on walls, ceilings and woodwork alike. It has intense covering power, spreads about 600 square feet per gallon and brushes very easily. Satin Finish has achieved great popularity in the past few years because it combines the soft, glare-free beauty of flat paint with the full, rich body of enamel. It is highly washable.

On new plaster or metal Liquid Velvet Wall Primer and Sealer should be used as an undercoat. On new woodwork O'Brien's White Surfacers should be used. Satin Finish dries overnight. It may be stippled if desired. It has, however, excellent self-smoothing properties.

Pre-Shrunk Oils

Paint chemists agree that oil shrinkage, in the dried paint film, is a major cause of paint failure. By an intricate process, patented in 1933, the oils used in O'Brien Paints are actually Pre-shrunk — before being mixed with the other ingredients in the particular paint. The result — O'Brien exterior paints stand up under Sun and Weather longer. O'Brien interior paints wash easier, even after years of service.
